Description

Hyde Park Gardens Mews is a beautiful corner Mews house which accommodates six people in one of the most desirable Mews addresses of West London and which has the advantage of no passing traffic as it is tucked away in a quiet part of the Hyde Park Estate.

The property provides a quality and better value alternative to hotel accommodation for both leisure and business breaks. It is an ideal and flexible option for families bringing young children to London to see the sights or a show.

As is typical with all Mews houses, the property started life in the late 1700 as a coach house and stables, with servants quarters above and it is thought to have been converted to a mews house in the early 1900's. The property once served the large stucco fronted houses which overlook Hyde Park.
